

Marie Biancuzzo's 45-Hour Step Up Course

Goal

The goal of this program is to help already-certified individuals reinforce and expand previously acquired knowledge and skills to promote, protect and support families in situations where more pathologic, complex, and technological factors threaten initiation and continuation of breastfeeding.

Objectives

- Apply previously-acquired communication, teaching, counseling, advocacy, and problem-solving skills to more complex, team-oriented and global situations.
- Recognize, analyze, and problem-solve conditions where anatomical and physiological variations of normal, abnormal, and pathology threaten the initiation and continuation of breastfeeding.
- Develop an individualized plan of care where contemporary medical, environmental and technological advances impact breastfeeding and lactation.
- Demonstrate a fundamental understanding of the research process, terminology, methods, and end-user meaning of scientific studies.
